You in three words

Care for others · Memory for what matters · Patience

At your best, you make warm, careful choices that keep your family safe and together.

Type frequency: estimates for U.S. adults from a national sample of 3,009 people (Myers et al., 1998). Our test uses its own 4 scales, so the figure is an estimate.

CHAPTER 2

Your 4 scales

Each scale has two sides. Nobody is 100% one side — your answers showed which side you lean toward. It is marked with ✓.

Energy — Where do you get your energy?

Social — ✓ Quiet

You recharge in quiet. A calm morning, a book or one good friend gives you energy back.

Mind — What do you notice first?

Visionary — ✓ Grounded

You trust facts, experience and practical details. You notice what others miss.

Decisions — How do you decide?

Logic — ✓ Heart

You decide with your heart. You think first about how a choice affects people.

Lifestyle — How do you like to live?

Planner ✓ — Flexible

You like a plan, order and finished tasks. You feel best when things are settled.

CHAPTER 3

Your strengths

These are the things people value in you — often more than you realize.

💛 Care for others

You notice what people need and quietly take care of it.

⭐ Memory for what matters

You remember birthdays, favorite dishes and the stories that matter.

🌿 Patience

You stay calm and kind when others are in a hurry.

Your mind’s natural strengths

Based on how you take in information and how you like to live, your mind is naturally good at:

Memory for details · Focus

Your brain-training plan builds on these strengths and trains the areas that get less practice.

CHAPTER 4

Your blind spots

Every strength has a flip side. Blind spots are not flaws — they are habits worth noticing.

🔍 Rarely asks for help

You help everyone, but you rarely ask for help yourself.

> Try this: This week, ask for one small favor — and let someone enjoy helping you.

🌱 Worries when routines change

When a routine changes, worry can take over.

> Try this: When a plan changes, write down two new options before you decide how you feel.

What slips first for your type

For The Keeper, what tends to slip first is flexibility when routines change. Your brain-training plan in Chapter 10 starts exactly there.

CHAPTER 5

How you make decisions

Heart Planner

You decide with your heart and like to have things settled. You think about how a choice will affect the people you love, then you commit. Watch for: saying yes to keep the peace when you mean no.

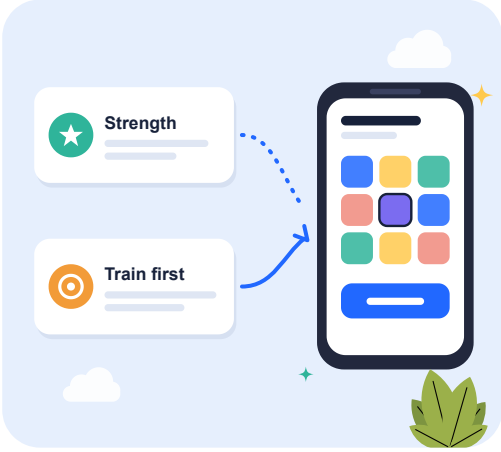

At your best, you make warm, careful choices that keep your family safe and together.

Three small habits for better decisions

1. Ask yourself: “Would I say yes if nobody would be disappointed?”
2. It is fine to answer “Let me think about it” instead of yes on the spot.
3. Add one fact to every heart decision: cost, time or distance.

Why this matters for your mind

Deciding uses your working memory: holding several options in mind and comparing them. The Logic and Math games in your [Company] plan practice exactly that — in a few relaxed minutes a day.

CHAPTER 6

Relationships and communication

You are a gentle, loyal listener with a few deep friendships. People open up to you. Share your own feelings more often — the people close to you want to hear them.

With your family

You are the quiet heart of the family. You listen, you notice feelings and you care deeply, often without being asked.

With friends

You have a small circle of close friends who open up to you. Make sure you also let them take care of you.

With children and grandchildren

Your children and grandchildren love your patience. A quiet walk, a puzzle or a long talk with you can be the best part of their day.

People feel safe with you; let them see your needs, too.

Staying sharp for the people you love

Remembering names, following a fast family conversation, keeping up with your children's and grandchildren's news — these are the everyday moments your brain-training plan is built around.

CHAPTER 7

You at your best

Everyone has good days and hard days. Knowing your pattern helps you get back to your best faster.

At your best

Caring, loyal and attentive. You remember what matters to people.

Under stress

You may do too much for others, keep worries to yourself and feel unappreciated.

What brings you back

A quiet cup of tea, a familiar routine and someone who says thank you.

How to talk to you

Share this with the people close to you.

1. Talk one-on-one, in a calm place.
2. Be gentle with criticism — you take it to heart.
3. Ask what you think; you may not say it first.

CHAPTER 8

People, pastimes and questions

You may share your type with

Rosa Parks
civil rights pioneer

Kate Middleton
Princess of Wales

Anne Hathaway
actress

Based on public descriptions of these people, not official assessments.

Pastimes you may enjoy

- Gardening
- Crafts, woodwork or knitting
- Nature walks and birdwatching
- Photography

Three questions for this week

1. What do I need this week — not others?
2. Where did I say yes but mean no?
3. Who made me smile, and have I told them?

CHAPTER 9

How your mind works

Your mind holds a map of people, routines and memories. Gentle variety keeps it flexible as routines change with age.

Your strength is memory for what matters — people, routines, details. What slips first is flexibility: a change of routine can throw you off.

Small slips with names and details are common at any age. Short daily practice keeps your mind in the habit of noticing.

Your mind in four areas

These are the four areas you can train in the [Company] app. Here is the order that fits your type.

🧩 Logic	seeing patterns and finding a new order of steps	Week 1 · train first
➗ Math	quick mental math and holding several numbers at once	Week 2 · train next
🧠 Memorization	holding names, numbers and details in mind	Week 3 · new areas
🎯 Focus	staying with one task and noticing what changed	Week 3 · new areas

Personality describes habits of thinking, not your memory or health. Brain games are practice, not treatment. If you are worried about your memory, talk to your doctor.

CHAPTER 10

Your brain-training plan

4 weeks · 10 minutes a day · 2 games a day, about 5 minutes each. Each week focuses on one area of your mind, in the order that fits The Keeper.

WEEK 1 🧩 Logic

Detail-minded people rely on proven routines. Logic puzzles train the mind to find new patterns when routines change.

Water Sort — Pour colored water between glasses until each glass holds one color.

> Why it's for you: Calm, step by step and no rush — you plan the order, then watch it work.

Single Line — Fill the whole shape with one continuous line.

> Why it's for you: A small puzzle you can finish in seconds — an easy first win of the day.

This week helps you: Solve everyday problems and adjust calmly when plans or routines change.
You'll know it's working when your Logic number on the Progress tab is higher than on day 1, and when a plan changes, you find a plan B in a few minutes, without stress.

WEEK 2 ➗ Math

Planners think best on a set path. Quick mental math trains speed and working memory, so the mind adapts fast when plans change.

Comparison — Choose which side is bigger, quickly.

> Why it's for you: Quick, friendly rounds — trust your first sense of the numbers.

Fast Math — Solve quick sums before the time runs out.

> Why it's for you: Short rounds of everyday sums — like checking the change.

This week helps you: Think quickly — check a bill or count change in your head.
You'll know it's working when your Math number on the Progress tab is higher than on day 1, and you check a restaurant bill or the change at the store in your head.

WEEK 3 🧠 Memorization + 🎯 Focus

This week brings in the two areas you haven't trained yet. Play one game from each, every day.

Pair Tiles — Memorization: Remember where the pairs of pictures are, then find them on a closed board.

> Why it's for you: Pictures stick best for a mind that thinks in people and moments — like putting a name to a face.

Fruit Sort — Focus: Sort the fruits so each basket holds one kind.

> Why it's for you: A tidy, practical task — focus without pressure.

This week helps you: Remember names and details without the awkward pause. Keep track of your keys and glasses, and follow a conversation without losing the thread.

WEEK 4 All four together

New games from all four areas. Play 2 of these each day, changing the mix, and see which area grew the most since day 1.

Single Line — Logic: Fill the whole shape with one continuous line.

Memo — Focus: Memorize the positions of the cards, then find them all.

Fast Math — Math: Solve quick sums before the time runs out.

Missing items — Focus: Look at a set of items, then spot what has gone missing.

Your 28-day check-in

Tick a circle each day you play. Aim for at least 5 days a week — that is how a habit forms.

	Mon	Tue	Wed	Thu	Fri	Sat	Sun
Week 1	○	○	○	○	○	○	○
Week 2	○	○	○	○	○	○	○
Week 3	○	○	○	○	○	○	○
Week 4	○	○	○	○	○	○	○

CHAPTER 12

About this report

Entertainment, not diagnosis

This personality test is for self-discovery and entertainment. It is not a medical or psychological diagnosis and is not a substitute for professional evaluation.

How we built your type

You rated 24 statements, six for each of four scales: Energy, Mind, Decisions and Lifestyle. Each scale shows which side you lean toward. Your four sides together give one of 16 types. Our scales and type names are our own.

About the rarity figure

How common each type is comes from estimates for U.S. adults in a national sample of 3,009 people (Myers et al., 1998). Because our test uses its own scales, the figure is an estimate.

About brain games

[Company] games are everyday mental practice. They are not a medical treatment. If you notice changes in your memory that worry you, please talk to your doctor.
